

User Story: Current Game Data

As a logged-in user, I want to be automatically notified when the associated Riot Account I am logged in with begins a match. The specific match details will be hidden at first in order to reduce unwanted clutter in case I did not want the match details. Only when I interact with the notification will the app then display the specific match details including each player on both teams and their ranks. From this display, I want to be able to click on a specific player to expand their details further, displaying the statistics of their 10 most recent matches and how it compares to my own and the average player of their rank. I also want to be able to toggle between a player's general stats (listed above) and their performance on the specific character they're currently playing in the same expanded menu.